Do You Need Water on Your Place?

If so, get W. R. Renfro to drill you a well. He has been drilling wells throughout Central Kentucky for thirty years, and has made a reputation by good work and honest dealings. He feels that he can refer with confidence to the citizens of that section. Avoid accidents and vexatious delays by an experienced and successful firm. W. R. Renfro is equipped with the latest improved steam and horse power machinery, and assisted by skilled hands, can drill wells as quickly and cheap as it is possible to do. Anyone needing water should drop him a card. P. O. Box 241, or phones 905, Lexington, Ky.

Maj. Thomas' Will Attacked.

James Thomas, of Lancaster, Saturday filed in the Fayette Circuit Court a statement on appeal, in which he attacks the will of his first cousin, Major Barak G. Thomas, who died in May, 1906, and left nearly all of his estate to Margaret Pryor, his colored housekeeper. Shortly after the death of the noted turfman his will was attacked by relatives in South Carolina, and a compromise was effected. In his statement James Thomas declares that he did not participate as a beneficiary in that compromise.

Judge Stout Decides in Favor of Schools.

Judge R. L. Stout Saturday decided that it was not a violation of the constitution for the General Assembly of this year to appropriate $500,000 for buildings and maintenance of the State University and the Eastern and Western Normal Schools.

The case was argued all day Friday, the attorneys for the schools being Judge Louis McQuown, Governor Beckham, Morgan Chinn, W. O. Davis, Judge A. R. Burman and Judge Jerr. Sullivan; for the State Attorney General Breathitt and Assistant Attorney General Morris.

Judge Stout said that he thought he was bound by the opinion of the Court of Appeals in the case of Morse against Hager which covered the points and that while he might misconstrue he would not ignore a decision of the highest court in the State.

As to the contention of Attorney General Breathitt that the change of the name of the A. and M. College to the University and the abolishment of the Normal Department at the University and conducting the schools at Bowling Green and Richmond took from the Legislature the right to appropriate the money.

He held that it did not matter so long as the schools were actually conducted. The case was appealed and will go before the Court of Appeals at the earliest opportunity. An order instructing Auditor James to pay over to the three institutions $20,000 each was immediately ordered. The result is regarded as a great victory for the advancement of education in Kentucky.

Foraker's Answer to Roosevelt.

In a long and carefully prepared statement United States Senator J. B. Foraker took up the recent charges made by William R. Hearst and President Roosevelt, explaining his temporary connection with the Standard Oil Company and discussing the Brownsville incident and his connection with the rate bill. The points in his statement are as follows:

"Apparently every man who has had any relation to the Standard Oil Company is to be driven out of public life. If so, I shall probably have a great deal of company. Only one month ago, when Mr. Taft visited Toledo, he was the guest of Mr. C. T. Lewis, of the law firm of Doyle & Lewis, who have been the attorneys of the Standard Oil Company for many years, and when Mr. Taft had occasion to pass back and forth between Middle Bass and Toledo, where I had the pleasure of meeting him, he traveled on the yacht of Mr. Richardson, a prominent magnate of the Glass Trust, and while he doubtless paid his fare—at least the papers so announced—while traveling from Hot Springs to Toledo, yet nevertheless he rode in the private car of one of the officers of the road of which Messrs. Doyle & Lewis are also attorneys.

"There did not seem to be any such righteous dislike of these Standard Oil and other Trust representatives ranking in the bosom of Mr. Taft on the occasions to which I refer.

"It is also highly to his credit that when, three years ago, the President had occasion to appoint a U. S. District Judge for the Northern District of Ohio, Mr. Taft, knowing the abilities and high character of John H. Doyle, of this same Standard Oil firm of Doyle & Lewis, did not hesitate to recommend him to the President in strong language for appointment to that judgeship. The Standard Oil relation of Judge Doyle, then well-known to Mr. Taft, did not prevent him from recognizing his high character and general fitness for such a sacred trust.

"Without disparaging genuine morality it can be truthfully said that less imaginary and professional 'lightness of action' and 'moral awakening' and more common sense in the policies of the Administration would have been better for the country.

"I had in mind not the stopping indefinitely of railroad construction at a time when it is so badly needed, not the losses amounting to billions of dollars, in values of all kinds of securities, but the empty dinner pails and suffering families of thousands of unemployed wage-earners.

"A million dinner pails have been kicked over. We know that the policies of the Republican party filled them. Whose policies emptied them?"

Tried to Meet.

Taft and Bryan were both in Minneapolis Sunday, but despite the effort of both to meet and exchange greetings the several engagements made for them prevented. Messages were, however, exchanged. Judge Taft spoke at the dedication of the New Y. M. C. A. building in the afternoon and at the Fowler Methodist church at night. Mr. Bryan left for Mitchell, S. D.

New Capitol to Small.

Not enough space to house the various departments of the State Government, as the heads of these departments want to be housed, exists in the new Capitol at Frankfort, and the handsome new building, which is now being completed at a cost of nearly $2,000,000, is already too small. Office rooms are needed already, although the building has never been occupied, and the heads of the various departments are fighting for space, with the probability that each will get only about half what he wants. C. M. Fleenor, who is in charge of the construction work at the Capitol, under the direction of the Capitol Commission, has taken up the question of allotment of space in the new building and finds that the Capitol Commission will have a hard task on its hands when it undertakes to say where and how much space each State department shall occupy.

Enough space has been provided for the Governor, the Secretary of State, the Treasurer and the Auditor, and possibly the Attorney General, but the subordinate departments of the State have not enough space by a good deal. The Adjutant General's office, which consists of four separate departments has been allowed only three rooms, with filing rooms additional, and Gen. P. P. Johnson says he must have more space than that. The Superintendent of Public Instruction, the Commissioner of Agriculture, the Railroad Commission and the Land Office all want several times as much space as has been allowed them. The Kentucky State Historical Society also wants five rooms in addition to the Hall of Fame, and the State Librarian says that he is being crowded and must have more space.

When the new Capitol was first built it was supposed that for many years to come the State departments would have all the room needed, and there would not be any necessity for enlargement, but when actual occupancy is taken up it is found that not enough space has been provided, and the new question of allotment of space is to be settled by the Capitol Commission. The arrangement made by the architect will have to be changed, and some of the rooms devoted to purposes other than those for which they were designed originally.

Good Day's Work.

W. J. Bryan made a dozen speeches Saturday in Wisconsin. A feature of the visit to Madison was the presence in the hall where Mr. Bryan spoke of Senator Robert M. La Follette, who occupied a prominent seat among the audience, and who, in reply to a direct question by one of his admirers, if Mr. Bryan's argument on publicity of campaign contributions before election was not "all right," responded "yes, it is."

Haskell's Successor.

Chairman Mack late Saturday afternoon announced the appointment of Herman Ridder, of New York, as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee to succeed Charles N. Haskell, of Oklahoma, resigned. Mr. Ridder has accepted the appointment and will leave for Chicago in a few days to take up the duties of the position.

Haskell's Resignation.

The resignation of Governor Haskell as forwarded to Chairman Mack Saturday night, reads:
"Hon. Norman L. Mack, Chairman Democratic National Committee, New York City:
"My Dear Sir—In pursuance of information as to your date for return here, when I went home before, I assumed I would find you here upon return today. I now learn that you will be detained in the East until Tuesday, and as I must be home Monday I leave tomorrow.

"Since the President and his cabinet have joined forces with Mr. Hearst, three Wall street brokers to make a personal fight against me, standing the President in his own name about Ohio Standard Oil cases, yet all means at the command of the government and the millions of the people and his Wall street allies, they are in vicious, unwarranted and untrue attacks on me—personally I have not the vigor at my command, I treat them as private citizens and subject to the penalties of the law as they merit.

"In this I know I shall have the support of my neighbors at home, for all other purposes, but my time must be for other demands here.
"My heart is full of hope for the election of Bryan and Kern, government and rule by the people at stake. Important beyond any title at the polls in the last general election is the pending contest.

"I would not for one moment consider remaining in any way connected with the committee, therefore, I tender my resignation as Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee that not the slightest contest of mine could in any way be used by President to cloud the sky and opponents from discussing the real issues and laying bare the Republican policy to the people.

"Sincerely yours,
"C. N. HASKELL

No Trace of Missing Student.

Willis E. Smith, the State University freshman, is still missing. No clue as to his whereabouts has been obtained, has been gone nearly one week, and disappeared last Tuesday night. Smith is the son of Rev. Willis Smith, who is pastor of a Presbyterian church in Melrose, New Mexico, matriculated at State University, Lexington, August 31 and went to his room with his brother, Ernest Smith, second year man. They have been rooming at the home of Mr. Beauchamp, president of the Kentucky W. C. T. U., on the Versailles near Lexington.

The young man was last seen by the Beauchamp home Tuesday night by Miss Minerva Collins, and from time on nothing has ever been heard of him. It was first said that he was a victim of college hazing but a canvass of the college shows this is not so.

His brother Ernest at first thought he had gone to the home of their brother, Frampton Smith, in Oxford, but on inquiry it was found nothing had been heard of him. It is probable that a reward will be offered for information of his whereabouts. The police have been working on the case, but have not discovered anything. They think that the boy is on his way back to Melrose, New Mexico. A telegram received from the father of the boy states that nothing has been seen or heard of him at Melrose since his disappearance last Tuesday night.
